Dragons Dawn

Desolation

Version 1.3. May 9, 2026

INTRODUCTION

"We discovered new lands, new Heroes, new treasures, new sites...
...and new ways to die".

Dragons Down: Desolation expands your Dragons Down experience by adding many new treasures, two new Terrain Packs, 2 new Lineages to use with new and existing Classes, and 12 new Classes to use with new or existing Lineages.

Each Terrain Pack consists of all new Map Tiles, new and additional Monsters, new Treasure Sites, new tokens, new missions, etc.

Most new components will have a Swamp or Plains symbol on them or are marked with a small D in one corner of the card. counters, round cardboard tokens, and Hero Boards do not have this mark.

REFERENCE

Lineage Advantages.

Half-Elves (Two Worlds)
Half-Elves straddle the worlds of elves and humans. At the beginning of the game, Half-Elves choose either the elven advantage or the human advantage to use for the entirety of this game session.

Half-Orc (Mountaineer)
Half-Orcs are very comfortable in mountains and do not pay the additional action cost to enter a Mountain Clearing.

Class Advantages

Assassin (Backstab)
The Assassin is skilled at stalking their target. Assassins may ambush with a melee weapon, after which the Assassin becomes unhidden.

Bard (Musical)
Bards are entertainers and minstrels in addition to being heroic. If the Bard is in a Civilization Location at the end of Combat, they roll one Mission Die and receive the reward rolled.

Battle Mage (Power)
The Battle Mage has honed the combination of magic and martial skills into one discipline. The Battle Mage may play one purple Magic Cube as if it is a red Might Cube each Combat Round.

Black Knight (Feared)
The Black Knight is a greatly-feared veteran of many wars, causing negotiations to go a little bit easier than for others. The Black Knight may reroll one Haggle Die once per Trade Action.

Executioner (Intimidation)
The Executioner is an intimidating opponent that causes others to think twice before acting. In the first round of Combat, the attack speed of all Natives targeting the Executioner is -1.

Magician (Knowledge)
Magicians know a little bit about many types of magic colors. Magicians may use any color of Magic Cube on the 2nd box of a Spell Card.

Paladin (Honor)
Paladins are very honorable in all of their dealings. When a Paladin earns one or more LPs on a title, they earn +1 LP.

Ranger (Woods Lore)
Rangers know the woods after spending years in the wilderness. When in Woods Clearings, Rangers may reroll one Search Die during each Search Action.

Runesword (Control)
Runeswords have spent a lifetime learning about artifacts and how to control them. Runeswords may use a blue Magic Cube on any color of magic box on Treasure Cards.

Soulless (Incorporeal)
The Soulless have a limited physical body, more akin to a spirit than a living creature. Soulless may use all Hidden Paths when in their normal form (not Shape Shifted, etc.).

Trickster (Illusionary Speed)
The Trickster is often underestimated because they are masters of role-playing and act like a buffoon. This gives the Trickster an advantage in combat. When attacking, the Trickster may change one Hit Die result from an equal symbol to a hit symbol.

Witch (Familiar)

The Witch is a purveyor of arcane magic and has a Familiar which does the Witch's bidding. The Familiar is psychically linked to the Witch and shares what it learns with the Witch. When playing the Witch, also take the 2 Familiar Tokens. Use one as the Familiar Hero counter and the other for Turn Order. The Familiar has the following rules:

- When the Familiar's Targeting Token is selected, the Witch takes actions for the Familiar only, using the Familiar's Hero counter.
- The Familiar follows the same rules as any other Hero. The Familiar may only move, explore, and search. The Familiar does not fly.
- When a Familiar moves onto a Map Tile, place a Wilderness Token/Civilization Tokens in the tile face-down. The Witch may not look at the token(s).
- When searching, the Familiar may only search for a single wilderness or Civilization Token in the same Map Tile as the Familiar or a Hidden Path in the same clearing as the Familiar. Upon a successful search for any one token, the Witch may look at the face-down token, but does not reveal it.
- The Familiar may not search for Treasure Sites or receive rewards from Wilderness Tokens (Forgotten City, items, treasures, etc.).

- The Witch may not look at face-down tokens except immediately after a successful search. It is good practice to record what the Familiar sees in the Adventure Journal.
- The Familiar does not summon Monsters and may not target, be targeted, block, or be blocked. It does not participate in Combat. Spells may not be cast on, nor affect the Familiar.
- If a Hero moves onto a Map Tile containing face-down token(s) placed by the Familiar, reveal the tokens in the tile instead of selecting new token(s) for the Map Tile.

Treasure Site and Merchant Reference

Hideout

Hidden Trap: Side 2 of the Terrain Pack Setup Card includes a hidden trap on the Hideout. The Hero that first finds the Secret Cache must wound one random Action Cube unless they possess the Skeleton Key Treasure Card.

Lost Battalion

Disembodied: Side 2 of the Terrain Pack Setup Card has disembodied treasures for the Lost Battalion. The Lost Battalion site may not be looted until all Lost Battalion Monsters are killed.

Monolith

Magic Seal: Side 2 of the Terrain Pack Setup Card includes a magic seal on the Monolith. The Monolith may not be looted until it is opened. The Monolith may be opened at any time by wounding any Magic Cube or by possessing the Skeleton Key Treasure Card. Once opened, any Hero may loot the Monolith.

Wrecked Wagons

When the Wrecked Wagons are searched for and found by a Hero, they do not need to be looted. The Hero that first finds the Wrecked Wagons receives the Legend Point and Fame reward, and takes the treasures and Gold as if they had performed successful Loot Actions.

Hidden Trap: Side 2 of the Terrain Pack Setup Card includes a hidden trap on the Wrecked Wagons. The Hero that first finds the Wrecked Wagons must wound one random Action Cube unless they possess the Skeleton Key Treasure Card.

Smuggler

The Smuggler respects no attributes and uses whatever is the lowest attribute score of the haggling Hero.

Monster Reference

Bandits

Dragons Down: Desolation introduces additional Treasure Sites to which the Bandits may be summoned. The Bandits may appear at the Hideout, Secret Cache, and/or Wrecked Wagons. The red arrow near the Bandits indicates that the Bandit Chips might be located on another Terrain Setup Card. The Bandits always summon as a group as if they were a single Guardian.

The Bandits may summon from the setup cards or the map. If on the map, the Bandits will not leave a Treasure Site Clearing that contains a Hero. If the Bandits are summoned to multiple clearings simultaneously, they all summon to the clearing containing the Hero earliest in the Turn Order.

Lizardfolk Shaman

The Lizardfolk Shaman is a unique Monster. The front side of the Shaman casts the Elemental spell. Once summoned, the Elemental behaves like a regular Monster. The Elemental immediately disappears if the Shaman is killed (earning no points for killing the Elemental should this occur). The Shaman may only have one Elemental at a time. If a Shaman-summoned Elemental is alive when the Shaman's Elemental spell attack is processed, simply ignore the Shaman's attack that round.

Omnicrux

The Omnicrux only attacks with spells. The front side is a Fireball spell which the Omnicrux will use to target up to 4 Heroes in the clearing (determine randomly if more than 4 Heroes are present). If only one Hero is present, the Omnicrux will target only the one Hero. This is a spell attack, which is different than a dragon breathing fire.

The back side is a Disorient spell. Should the Disorient spell hit a Hero, immediately flip over the Omnicrux (it does not attack again this round). The Omnicrux may flip over normally during the Monster Tactics step of Combat. There is no limit to the number of times a Hero may be disoriented by the Omnicrux, but the effects are not cumulative.
